Vehicle Description

Monaco. A principality of excess, wealth and glamour. Why, then, did Caterham decide to give a special-edition version of its Roadsport model the same name? My guess is that the Caterham Merthyr Tydfil just didn't quite have the same ring to it., The 125bhp 1.6-litre Ford Sigma engine has a good spread of torque and there's a very useful 227bhp per ton on tap. With unaggressive Avon ZV3 tyres, the power-to-grip ratio is a good match, too. The balance is spot-on and the overall ride/handling compromise is superb! , This model also features a hood and full weather equipment!!!
