Vehicle Description

The word 'unique' is often overused in the marketing for collectable motor cars. However, in this instance it encompasses the offering perfectly. The Range Rover offered for sale here is no ordinary P38 Range Rover; it is a one-off concept car.

In 1997, and with increased demand from their Autobiography programme, Land Rover Special Vehicles turned P880 KAC (already an Autobiography in it's own right) into a Mobile Office Concept. With a development budget of £450,000, P880 was used as a pilot/test bed vehicle to showcase different options for future Autobiography customers. Land Rover approached Noel Edmond's company Unique Group to help supply some of this technology, with the intention to market these additional options to new Autobiography owners across Land Rover dealerships. As a result, P880 was also used for promotion and demonstration purposes by Land Rover, as well as Sony and Cellnet.
